SIERC and GUG Form Strategic Alliance to Create Customized Case Studies for German and European Union Enterprises

TORONTO, CANADA, and FRANKFURT, GERMANY – SEPTEMBER 6, 2018

Signal Influence Executive Research & Communications, Inc. (SIERC), Canada, and Gesellschaft für Unternehmensgeschichte GmbH (GUG), Germany, announced today a new strategic alliance to deliver future-oriented consulting stemming from research based on a client’s historical past.

GUG is a prominent and long-established presence in Germany in the discipline of business history, with 16 full-time employees and scores of publications to its credit. SIERC has overseen several multi-year projects on the long-run experience of prominent Canadian corporations such as Bell, Sun Life Financial and Bank of Montreal Financial Group. SIERC has developed a unique service that uses research based on a client firm’s long-run experience to help the client focus on its contemporary challenges.

“We are confident that, with our Method and experience we will bring important insights to the strategic challenges that companies face in stakeholder engagement, cultural and organizational change, and communication strategies,” said SIERC CEO Dr. Laurence B. Mussio. “Uncovering the evidence-based narrative of experiences in an organization’s past can lead to surprising insights for contemporary decision makers.”

“The customized case studies that the SIERC-GUG alliance offer essentially boil down to three simple questions: Where are you now? How did you get here? What comes next? The questions may be simple, but the best answers emerge through the kind of research and delivery that we specialize in,” Dr. Mussio concluded.

GUG Managing Director Dr. Andrea Schneider-Braunberger said, “Our strategic alliance with SIERC allows us to provide unique and complementary services to the ones we already offer. German firms, as elsewhere, face an environment of growing global uncertainty, both in the European Union and in the larger global trading system. For us, this is another opportunity to serve businesses and enterprise in Germany and beyond with research, analysis and insight of the highest quality – and connect it to the strategic challenges they face today.”

The collaboration envisioned by the strategic alliance agreement has already begun, with activities expected to ramp up in October 2018.
